

EDCI 305 Teaching for Truth and Reconciliation – COURSE DESCRIPTION

An exploration of Indigenous worldviews, human rights issues, and impacts of European contact particularly on education. The course provides an opportunity to connect with local Indigenous people and their history with the intent to take actions toward reconciliation. The meaning of Truth and Reconciliation in the context of Christianity is explored.

This class is organized around four modules and some introductory work. The student is required to complete the readings, videos and assignments within each of the four weeks. Each module should be started and completed before moving on to the next module. A one-week grace period will follow with any extension arranged in consultation with the professor.

This class is organized by weeks with an Orientation Week prior to the beginning of the four-week intensive. The Orientation must be completed before you will be allowed to start the intensive. Please introduce yourself in D2L during the Orientation Week. The course will require 80 – 120 hours of study. Students are independent learners who must complete readings, videos, and assignments to meet personal and institutional deadlines. The content is arranged in four weeks of study. Tasks for each unit should be completed within the week allotted and the final task must be submitted by the last day of class.